Let's Practice
I Am Me

My Declaration of Self-Esteem and Self Acceptance

In all the world there is not one exactly like me. Everything that comes out of me is authentically mine because I choose it...I own everything about me, my body, my feelings, my mouth, my voice, all my actions whether they be to others or to myself...I own my fantasies, my dreams, my hopes, my fears...I own all of my triumphs and successes, all of my failures and mistakes...because I own all of me. I become intimately acquainted with me...by so doing, I can love me and be friendly with me in all my parts...I know there are aspects about myself that puzzle me and other aspects I do not know...but as long as I am friendly and loving to myself, I can courageously and hopefully look for solutions to the puzzles and for ways to find out more about me...however I look and sound whatever I say and do, and whatever I think and feel at a given moment in time is authentically me...if later some parts of how I looked, sounded, thought and felt turned out to be unfitting, I can discard that which is unfitting and keep the rest and invest something new for that which is I discard...I can see, hear, feel, think, say and do. I have the tools to survive, to be close to others, to be productive, and to make sense and order out of the world of people and things outside of me...I own me and therefore I can engineer me...I am me and I AM OKAY.

Interpersonal Effectiveness Goals

1) Meeting your Objectives

2) Maintaining and Improving your Relationships

3) Maintaining and Increasing your Self-Respect
Goals of Relationship Effectiveness

- Communicating your wants and needs in a way that builds and maintains the relationship
- Thinking about how you want the other person to feel about you after the interaction is over
How many positive relationships do you think you would have if you constantly insisted on doing only what you want, talking only about yourself, and not acknowledging the other person's feelings at all?
How many of you pay attention to how you interact with your parents? Some don't pay much attention to their relationship with their parents, because they don't think that how they interact with their parents has any effect on the relationship. Do you think you would be more likely to get what you want from your parents if you attended to the relationship in a way that strengthens it?
How many of you pay attention to how you interact with your children? Some don't pay much attention to their relationship with their children, because they don't think that how they interact with their children has any effect on the relationship. Do you think you would be more likely to get what you want from your children if you attended to the relationship in a way that strengthens it?

What about with Teachers, Bosses, or Close Friends?
Determining our Priorities

There are some situations where your objective within an interpersonal interaction is LESS IMPORTANT than maintaining your relationship with a person, or maintaining your self-respect.

This informs the GOAL of the interaction
For Example:
You have a movie date with a friend. You want to see the latest new comedy....they want to see something else.
The mnemonic for the skills to use for building and maintaining a relationship.

These skills focus on HOW you interact with the other person, similarly to the "how" skills in mindfulness.
"It's not what you said, it's HOW you said it"
G: (Be) GENTLE

• Be Courteous, Respectful, and Pleasant
• No attacks or threats
  E.g. "If you don't do this....", "You caused this"
• No judgements
  Avoid guilt trips, "should"s
• Voice Tone
I: (Act) INTERESTED

• Show interest in what the person is saying because you care about the relationship, even if you aren't interested in the topic
• Allow the person to finish their thoughts without interruption
• Be patient with the person

What are active listening skills?
Active Listening Skills

- Build trust and establish rapport.
- Ask specific questions.
- Demonstrate concern.
- Use brief verbal affirmations like:

Active listening techniques can help you truly understand what people are saying in conversations and meetings.
Have you ever been in a conversation with another person, and while you were talking, the other person kept checking for text messages or social media updates?

• How did you feel in this experience?
• Did you think the other person cared about what you were saying
• What is the non-verbal communication?

What do you notice in a supportive listener?
V: Validate

Validation is simply acknowledging another person's feelings, behaviors, or opinions, and expressing that they MAKE SENSE.

"Well, of course you got mad, I can see how that led to..." Vs. "Wow, you kinda blew up out of nowhere"

Validation ≠ Approval

We can validate WHY someone did something without validating WHAT the person did.
Validation Strategies

1. Based on their past experiences

"Of course you were scared to tell your parents that you failed the test, because last time you failed a test, they grounded you for a month"

2. By Normalizing a person's reaction

"I get that you were scared to tell your parents that you failed the test, I know I would be too!"
Validating Levels

Level One: Stay awake and Pay attention

Level Two: Reflect Back

Level Three: Read Minds

Level Four: Show Understanding

Level Five: Acknowledge the Valid

Level Six: Show Equality
E: (Use an) EASY MANNER

- Smile
- Be easygoing
- Use Humor
- Use a light tone of voice

The goal is to minimize the chance of the person feeling as if they are forced into a defensive position, so they can be more open to hearing what you're saying.
At Home Practice: In Vivo Experience

Find another person to practice with. With the other person, practice taking turns talking about an event from your day or week that you would feel comfortable telling a friend about.

- Taking turns, Person A will begin by sharing about this event.
- For the first 5 minutes that Person A is sharing, Person B should use GIVE skills while listening.
- For the second 5 minutes, Person B should intentionally stop using GIVE.
- Switch roles

Then Discuss: What did it feel like to experience GIVE or not? How did it change your perception of the relationship?
